

We'll Still be a Family

A beautifully illustrated children's book exploring cross-cultural transition through the eyes of a child to help families prepare for the journey ahead.

Global Interaction has teamed up with author Linsey Painter to produce this beautiful book for children of cross-cultural workers as they transition to life in a culture and setting very different to their own.

In searching for resources to equip Global Interaction workers to prepare their children for the transition ahead, it became clear that there was a need for high-quality material created for children and families.

As a third culture kid herself, Linsey has tapped into her own memories and written a beautiful story capturing the many emotions that children and adults alike experience as they adjust to a new home. The words are brought to life by Susan English's delightful and poignant illustrations.

We'll Still be a Family is suitable for children aged 4 to 8 years and has been designed for families to read together. This book will open conversations and give children the opportunity to express their expectations, uncertainties, fears and excitements as they anticipate the transition.

About the author:

Linsey Painter grew up in South East Asia knowing the adventure and heartache of life in transition. Now as a Mum, she has been able to experience what transition is like for parents as well. Linsey writes stories for children and young adults. Her stories focus on growing young hearts, challenging assumptions and exploring courage in the face of life's difficulties. ## About Global Interaction:

Global Interaction is the cross-cultural mission agency of the Australian Baptist church. We are committed to empowering communities to develop their own distinctive ways of following Jesus.

Val Holt, Director of Member Care at Global Interaction, is passionate about equipping cross-cultural workers for transition as well as providing frameworks for growth and formation and offering pastoral support through their journey. This book has been created under her leadership as a resource to help families thrive as they serve cross-culturally.
