

D and C

Educational consultancy in South East Asia

D and C have considerable experience in cross-cultural life and work. They moved to South East Asia in 2000 and worked hard to learn the language of the people they serve, and gain an understanding of their culture and worldview.

D and C are highly qualified, D in pharmacy, law and English teaching, C in education and linguistics.

Their work as educational consultants is greatly appreciated by teachers and schools throughout the region. They teach in local universities and also offer training seminars for teachers from elementary to senior high school levels.

As they interact with people in their local community, they have many opportunities to share with people at a deep level, gaining insights into the worldview and offering a listening ear as people grapple with social and personal issues. They long to see individuals and communities experiencing the best that life has to offer.

D and C have two boys, Ben (11.4.99) and Daniel (9.8.01) who are doing their schooling through distance education.
